Schnierle Named To Restaurant Hall of Fame

EUGENE W. SCHNIERLE, Harrisburg native and local restaurant man, has been named to the Hall of Fame of the American Restaurant magazine.

That is quite an honor, especially in restaurant circles throughout the nation.

Schnierle, past president of the Illinois State Restaurant association, was presented a Hall of Fame plaque at a dinner meeting held Tuesday night at the Leland hotel in Springfield. It was a big event. Gov. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton were among those present.

Presentation was made by Mrs. Alice Patterson of the Patterson Publishing Co. of Chicago, which prints the American Restaurant magazine. To win the honor one must be a good restaurant operator and despite being busy at this work must devote energies to things outside of business.

In her presentation speech, Mrs. Patterson points to Mr. Schnierle's activities outside his restaurant.

"We see him working with the Shriners, the Elks, the American Legion, sooner or later always assuming leadership responsibilities," she said. "We see him staging a minstrel show each fall in his community for the benefit of crippled children."

She also points to his World War II experience in charge of food operations both in this country and in New Guinea.

THE LUCKY LEROY STORY has been put into print and picture. I got hold of one of the buck a copy editions on fine slick paper which is titled "The Bawlin Squalin' Lucky Leroy Story."

After a foreword in which Lucky says, "And remember the best thing you can do as you go through life is to remember the good Lord who brought you here, respect your mother and father, say your prayers, and try to be a better citizen," the booklet delves into WSIL-TV, where Lucky has been making his living the past couple of years.

There are pictures relating to the station and an article, after which the booklet gets going on Lucky himself.

Cold Air Mass Plunges Mercury In the Midwest

By United Press
An Arctic air mass swept over the Midwest and sent temperatures plunging as far south today as northern Texas, Alabama and Georgia in the wake of winter's biggest snowstorm.

The cold air held in check for the time being a new storm center developing in Oklahoma that threatened to bring more snow to the Midwest.

The center was expected to develop by Sunday morning and move eastward. The Weather Bureau in a special bulletin warned the storm center, if it materializes, probably would bring snow over most of Kansas and Missouri and a mixture of rain, sleet and snow over Oklahoma and Arkansas.

The snow blanket ranged from Texas to the Atlantic seaboard and piled up to depths of 8 to 15 inches in some areas. At least six deaths were blamed on the snowstorm.

The Far West was soggy with a drizzling rain, with temperatures in northern California from 45 to 55 degrees. No letup in the drizzle was indicated by the weather bureau for the next five days. The drizzle posed no new flood threats, however, the weatherman said.

Marine S-Sgt. Phillip Hobbs to March 100 Miles for March of Dimes

By ROBERT L. ULLRICH
United Press Staff Correspondent
MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (UP)—S-Sgt. Phillip E. Hobbs, a Marine veteran on polio next week when he marches 100 miles to stimulate donations to the March of Dimes.

"I've got three very good reasons for doing this," Hobbs said. "One is named Mary, one is named Betty and one is named Ann."

His "reasons" are his daughters, 2 years to 5 months in age. If one of them was stricken with polio, some of the donations Hobbs' march inspires would go toward the child's care.

The lanky Marine recruiter leaves here at 8 a. m. Monday on the first leg of the six-day march. His goal will be Carverville, 16 miles away. He expects to reach the little town at 4 p. m. and isn't worried about blisters or aching feet.

In Good Shape
"I've been doing a lot of hunting," he said, "and I'm in as good shape as I'll ever be."

He also has been getting limbered up by hiking six miles to work the past several days, from here to his office at Carbondale.

The veteran of three World War II campaigns with the 3rd Marine Division and 14 months of Korean fighting with the 1st Marine Division will wear full combat equipment, including an M-1 rifle.

Chief Lane, Pat Atkinson and John Dunn of the city force and Sheriff William T. Barrett and Deputies Everett N. Sneed, James S. Lyon, and Jeff Stricklin of the county department made the raid on the place, which said is known as the colored War Dad's club.

Smith and two persons who had been drinking beer were inside, Lane said. Five cases of beer and seven half-pint bottles of whisky were taken in the raid.

Smith was brought to town, then released to appear today with his attorney, Lane stated.

Lane stated that the raid was made on search warrant after a buy had been made for officers.

Will Be Replaced On April 1 by Deputy Director

Resignation is Accepted With Regret By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UP)—Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes—smiling, rotund architect of the Eisenhower administration's balanced budgets—has resigned.

Deputy Budget Director Percival F. Brundage will replace Hughes on April 1.

Hughes said he was resigning his $17,000-a-year post for "personal and family" reasons.

The 59-year-old budget director, who wears a black eye patch, left his job as vice president of the National City Bank of New York to become assistant budget director May 5, 1953. He succeeded Detroit banker Joseph M. Dodge as director 11 months later.

President Eisenhower accepted Hughes' resignation with "deepest regret."

Lauded By President
Mr. Eisenhower said Hughes should take "vast pride" in the balanced budgets in prospect for the current fiscal year and the one starting next July 1. He lauded the 250-pound New Yorker for helping in "reestablishing the nation on a strong budgetary foundation . . . on which it is possible" to provide for both national security and "advancement of human values" without "borrowing against future generations."

Besides balancing budgets, Hughes will be remembered for his part in the Dixon-Yates private power contract.

The normally quiet Budget Bureau was rocked last year when opponents of the Dixon-Yates contract charged various administration leaders with using "sly and clever" tactics to keep information about the contract from Congress and Mr. Eisenhower.

Opponents of the since-cancelled contract claimed Hughes was involved through the role played by Adolphe H. Wenzell, a vice president of the First Boston Corp. He served as an adviser to the Budget Bureau on the contract.

Democrats claimed Wenzell played a "dual role" and influenced the Budget Bureau to use the First Boston Corp. in financing the project.

Hughes testified before the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee studying the contract that "we may have made mistakes." He added that "with all I know now I certainly would have done differently."

It was learned that Hughes plans to take a rest for as long as six months before returning to private business.

Toni Gauer, Swiss Native, to Address Southern Illinois Dinner Club Jan. 27

A combination of authentic information about little Switzerland and how it has maintained a peaceful attitude and the highest standard of living in the world despite the fact it is surrounded by warring neighbors, and a program of Swiss folklore, and music, will be given to members of the Southern Illinois Dinner club at its meeting Friday, Jan. 27. The dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p. m. at the Kurt Country club.

Guest of the club will be Toni Gauer, born in Apanass where he started his working life as a cow herder and later was educated and college trained to be a book publisher. It was in this connection that he made his first visit to the United States about six years ago. As a faculty member of Ohio Wesleyan for a year, he prepared a book on Swiss folk music for that institution.

From Gauer, club members will hear the story of how his native Switzerland has maintained the peace while countries around it were at or preparing for war. They will learn of the Swiss free enterprise system and how it worked; and how the little country famous for its Alps and yodelers, has gone along on sound, old-line economies while its neighbors were busy carrying out the various forms of socialism.

Gauer is an accomplished musician, playing at least a dozen instruments well, and is better than an average yodeler.

Dinner club members are asked to make advance reservations for the Jan. 27 meeting with Rees Turner, secretary.

Willis H. Thompson, pioneer ladies' ready-to-wear store operator in Harrisburg and a real estate broker in more recent years, died today.

Death came at 3:10 a. m. to Mr. Thompson, 82 years old, at the Harrisburg hospital.

His body was taken to the Harrisburg funeral home, where it will lie in state in the chapel. The funeral service will be held in the funeral home chapel at 10 a. m. ## President Says Future Role 'Undetermined'

Promises Answer
On Candidacy
Soon as Possible

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican leaders from coast to coast made it abundantly clear today they want President Eisenhower to run again despite his recent reservations about his health.

At hundreds of "Salute to Eisenhower" dinners sponsored by the GOP National Finance Committee across the country Friday night, the dominant theme of the political oratory was, "We want Ike."

The President told an estimated 100,000 party faithful frankly that his future role in the GOP remained "undetermined." But he said whether campaign time finds him a re-election candidate or "a worker in the ranks" he will labor with all his strength for continuation of the policies that guided his administration for the past three years.

Mr. Eisenhower said he wished there were some method by which the American people could "point out the path of my true duty."

Quick Decision Promised
"But it appears," he added, "that this is a question that first I alone must answer. The answer will be forthcoming as quickly as it is firmly fixed in my mind."

Enthusiastic as GOP orators were about the President running again, they still were without real clues to his ultimate decision. He shed no more light on his plans Friday night than he did at his news conference Thursday.

While the Republicans derived no new information from the president they were successful in raising millions of dollars for their 1956 war chest. Estimates of the gross take from several hundred dinners ran as high as five-million dollars. Half goes to the GOP National Committee and the rest to state and local Republican organizations.

The nationwide "salute" to the President was built chiefly around 50 major dinners in 31 cities in 26 states. These blue-ribbon $100-per-plate rallies attracted an overall attendance estimated at between 60,000 and 70,000 persons. Many similar but lower-priced affairs were held in scores of smaller cities.

Closed-Circuit TV
The President appeared over closed-circuit television as part of a 30 minute program beamed to 49 of the larger dinners. The program was broadcast to four affairs by special radio circuits. The President's remarks also were broadcast nationally by the American Broadcasting Co.

In his first major public appearance since his illness last summer, the President spoke in person before an audience of some 1,700 in the ballroom of the Park Sheraton Hotel here. He did not attend the dinner, but arrived with Mrs. Eisenhower in time to watch the TV program as cameras switched from city to city.

When Mr. Eisenhower spoke, his remarks seemed to have a quiet effect on the crowd. They had been forewarned not to expect an announcement of his plans, but when he ended by saying he was still undetermined, the applause was markedly more subdued than it was when he started to speak.

Fugitive Killer
Reported Seen
In Five States

PRINCETON, Ind. (UP)—Jittery citizens "positively" identifying fugitive Leslie Irvin in five states spurred a confused police and FBI search today for the escaped "mad dog" killer.

The search concentrated in Illinois and Indiana. But the slayer, condemned to the electric chair, was reported seen in Dayton, Ohio; Louisville, Ky., and St. Louis, Mo.

Irvin escaped the Gibson county jail here Thursday. He was awaiting electrocution in June for murder. He had been accused of slaying six persons and was convicted for the murder of one of them.

The FBI entered the case Friday morning when a fugitive warrant was obtained at Evansville, Ind. The warrant charged the 31-year-old slayer had crossed the state line from Indiana to Mt. Carmel, Ill., where he is believed to have stolen an automobile.

Witnesses Under Protection
Witnesses and officials who had helped convict Irvin were under protection of armed guards, but life here had started to return to normal after the first flurry of fear following his escape.

Leonard Blaylock, special agent in charge of the FBI at Indianapolis, Ind., said the FBI and police in Indiana and the neighboring states of Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky were busy checking all clues.

Irvin was "positively identified" in a drug store at Kendallville, Ind., nearly 200 miles from here Friday, police at Fort Wayne, Ind., reported.

At St. Louis, Mo., just across the Illinois border, a hotel waitress who said she knew Irvin, told police she saw the fugitive late Thursday where she works.

Identified as Hitchhiker
Near Springfield, Mo., a motorist said also that he spotted a hitchhiker whom he identified as Irvin Friday night.

Other reports said Irvin was in the Chicago area. He had been identified as visiting a Watska, Ill., tavern about 85 miles from Chicago.

Indiana state police said Irvin apparently made keys out of cardboard and glue to escape the jail.

QUINTS SQUINT AT CAMERA—Quintuplet births are rare among cows as well as humans, so these five have a right to face the cameras. The quint was born on Alfred Gaser's farm in Valley City, Ohio, weighing only 20 to 25 pounds each. That's about one fourth the weight of normal Holstein calves. Gaser, whose daughter Carol is shown with the quint, saved them by feeding them colostrum (first milk) and calf nip, first from the fingers of a rubber glove and later from nipple nursing pails. Experts say quintuplets among cattle occur about once in 14 1/2 million births.

New Vaccine Seen Protection Against Rabies

URBANA—A new vaccine to protect persons exposed to rabies has been developed, and some workers in the field of rabies research feel that it may have some of the properties long sought in this type of vaccine, says a veterinarian at the University of Illinois.

Dr. R. M. Thomas of the state diagnostic laboratory at the College of Veterinary Medicine states that the new vaccine is not in general use at present, but it may become generally available in the near future.

Out of some 10,000 exposures to possible rabies in the nation last year, about 10 persons actually got the disease. The Pasteur treatment, a protective measure consisting of 21 shots, apparently always prevents rabies from developing in people who are exposed. Since the disease is always fatal once the symptoms appear, fast and correct steps leading to diagnosis in the exposing animal are necessary.

A dog that has bitten a person should NOT be killed, but should be confined and observed for 14 days. If it has rabies, it will die within a few days. The head or whole body should be packed in ice and sent to a State Department of Health laboratory or the diagnostic laboratory at the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine. If an animal is killed, diagnosis is very difficult.

At the laboratory, the animal's brain is tested for rabies. If there is any doubt about the results, a test is immediately conducted on mice. If rabies is present, the mice will usually die within seven days.

The disease takes about three weeks to develop in a human. This leaves ample time for a full diagnosis of the animal to determine whether the bitten person will require anti-rabies treatment. Any person bitten by a dog should report to a physician as soon as possible.

Dr. Thomas notes that Illinois law permits counties to set up rabies control programs. He believes every county should have such a program, with rabies vaccination required for dogs at the time they are licensed.

Another important aspect of rabies control is that all dog bite cases should be reported to the police or sheriff's office. This is a responsibility of both the bitten person and the dog's owner.

Also, law enforcement and health authorities should have a "follow-up system" so that action will be taken to confine the dog and have a diagnosis made if the animal develops the disease and dies.

Survivor Protection For Farm Families In Social Security

Many of the farmers in this area are thinking of Social Security only in terms of a pension when they retire at age sixty-five, or later, according to E. Bishop Hill, manager of the Harrisburg Social Security office.

Judging from the interviews at the Harrisburg office and its itinerant stations, Mr. Hill said there seems to be a tendency on the part of the young farm operator to overlook the protection the Social Security program provides for his family in case of his death. This protection converted to cash could amount to as much as $45,000, in survivors' benefits. These payments made during the critical years when the children are young could in many cases represent the biggest cash asset in the family estate.

In the event of death, cash benefits are made to the widow and children until the youngest child reaches age eighteen. And, when the widow reaches age sixty-five, provided she has not remarried, the benefits are resumed and continued for the rest of her life.

This survivors' protection is in addition to the retirement program, and, therefore, provides the dual purpose of protecting the family of the younger worker and then later providing income for his retirement. Survivors' benefits should not be minimized, Mr. Hill cautions. Benefit statistics reveal that forty per cent of all payments made under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program are to survivors of workers whose untimely death left surviving relatives eligible for payment.

Mr. Hill urges all farmers who have any questions concerning the Social Security program to contact the local office.

Let Pneumatic Grain Conveyors Haul Your Feed

Pneumatic grain conveyors are joining the long list of labor-saving equipment in use on many Illinois farms.

Pneumatic (forced air) systems have several advantages over mechanical conveyors, according to R. W. Kleis, agricultural engineer at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. Kleis uncovered the advantages while studying electric power as a means of reducing farm chore labor.

Pneumatic conveyors are more simply constructed than conveyors using belts, chains or augers. Just a blower at the feed supply and a pipe to the feeding area complete the system. There are fewer things to go wrong with a pneumatic conveyor and its one moving part.

The pipe is sheet steel, which is lightweight and flexible. It's fairly inexpensive, even for long-distance conveying. The system can be waterproofed. You can set it up for a lower first cost than mechanical equipment of equal length, Kleis adds.

The one drawback is the pneumatic conveyor's more costly use of power. But this disadvantage is outweighed by its convenience and simplicity.

Here are some other findings Kleis reports about pneumatic conveyors:

Ground feed is broken up even more when blown through a pneumatic conveyor. Take this point into consideration when you grind feed to be handled pneumatically. You'll get no increase in efficiency by sloping the conveyor pipe one way or another. It's best to give the pipe a little slope toward the discharge end, though, to allow moisture drainage.

Kleis has consolidated his findings in a publication, "Operating Characteristics of Pneumatic Grain Conveyors." You can get a free copy by writing to the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, Urbana, Illinois. Ask for Bulletin 594.

Trichomoniasis, a venereal disease of cattle, is one of the elusive causes of calf losses for which veterinary researchers at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture are trying to find a good inexpensive cure.

SIU Country Column

By ALBERT MEYER

Fruit tree and grape vine pruning time will be at hand within another month. The job always is an extensive one for commercial fruit growers, but it also is important for the ordinary farm family with a small orchard for home use.

By no means is there general agreement in commercial circles on how much trees should be pruned. Some advocate heavy pruning, others hold to the idea that the amount of wood cut away should not be heavy. All agree to the need for some pruning. The developing thought is to prune young fruit trees less than mature trees.

Why prune at all? Here are the more obvious reasons. Younger trees need to be pruned in such a manner that they will form strong crotches for branches capable of bearing large fruit yields year after year. Pruning also is used to shape the tree or to limit its growth so that it will be easier to spray, thin, or harvest the fruit. Another major objective is to maintain openness in the tree so that sunlight and spray materials may penetrate to all parts of the tree more easily. The tops of tall trees may be lowered by pruning so that the branches and fruit are more accessible. This will simplify other pruning and will make it easier to pick fruit. By pruning, branches may be kept from excessive spreading and from drooping to the ground.

Late winter or early spring is the best time to prune. By delaying until the tree is in winter injury to the tree usually may be avoided. There also is less dwarfing of the trees when pruning is done during the dormant stage. With no leaves on the trees it is easier to see the shape of the tree and to decide which branches need to be cut off or trimmed back. Normally there is more time available for this orcharding chore in winter, too.

For the family farm orchard the tools needed for pruning are inexpensive. Three items will do: a small hand pruner, lopping shears, and a half-moon saw. Ten dollars will cover the investment in good quality equipment. Wearing shoes with rubber soles and heels will be advisable if climbing is necessary during pruning. They prevent scarring the branches and give the climber better footing.

One of the essentials in pruning is to make a smooth, clean cut which will heal easily. That means cutting close and parallel to the supporting branch so that branch stubs will not be left. The operator may do this by placing the blade of the pruner below or beside the crotch of the branch—not in it.

When pruning out larger branches with a saw, a different procedure is necessary. Three saw cuts are needed to do the job without tearing and splitting the bark of the remaining parts of the tree. The first cut is a notch about two inches deep approximately eight inches out from the crotch where the final cut is to be made. The second cut should be from the top of the branch at a point two inches in from the first cut. Saw here until branch is removed. The third cut should remove the branch stub by cutting through the crotch flush with the supporting limb, giving a smooth surface which will heal well.

Lean Hogs Grow Fast and Cheap

Lean-type hogs grow as cheaply as fat-type porkers, according to G. R. Carlisle, livestock extension specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Carlisle says figures from the Forrest Swine Test Station in 1954 showed little difference between fat and lean hogs so far as rate and costs of gain were concerned.

More recent research indicates that, if any advantage in cost of gains exists, it is in favor of lean hogs.

The Ohio Swine Evaluation Station fed two pigs from each of 108 litters separately to compare costs. The lean hogs, which would grade U. S. No. 1 on the market, required 334 pounds of grain to put on 100 pounds of gain. Fat hogs in the test, grading U. S. No. 2 and 3, needed 356 pounds of feed to put on 100 pounds of gain.

Average daily gains in the test were 1.67 pounds a day for lean hogs and 1.69 pounds a day for fat hogs.

Seed Needs?

Forage crop seed supplies, we are told, are higher than usual. Thus it would seem that we would not need to be in more than the usual hurry to buy spring seed except for two uncommon factors: (1) federal farm legislation and (2) the winter drought.

The first is probably uppermost in most farmers' minds today. A "Soil Bank" plan is part of the President's farm program, recently presented to Congress for action. This plan proposes to take crop land, possibly up to 20 per cent, out of production. It has been proposed that the land taken out of production be seeded to forage crops or planted to trees. The effects, implications and good and bad points of such a program have furnished copy for millions of words and thousands of articles. As a topic for conversation, even the weather has been pushed into second place. And so we apologize for adding this prognosis: An increase in forage crop seedings approaching 20 per cent of the land area that is now being used for cotton, corn, wheat and feed grains will put a strain on the otherwise near-normal supply of forage crop seeds. Seed prices will go higher.

Seedlings Need Moisture

This winter's drought affected new pasture and hay seedlings. According to our crop specialist,

George McKibben, many of the tender seedlings on the Station look as if they had been scorched with a blow torch. During winter dormancy, plants need only a relatively small amount of moisture to live. To date the deeply rooted, established plants have not been seriously damaged. But lack of moisture has critically affected the new seedlings that are rooting only in the top two or three inches of soil. This cracked, bone-dry soil is taking the available moisture and leaving none for the plants. Obviously with the failure of these new seedlings, the demand for seed next spring will be greater than usual.

Lespedeza Is Inexpensive

Korean lespedeza seed will be used widely on the Station next spring to thicken stands for both pasture and hay. Lespedeza is one of the most dependable legume crops in southern Illinois, and the seed is relatively cheap. We will seed it by broadcast in late February or early March. We also plan to sow timothy, redbud, red clover, sweet clover and Ladino clover in the early spring. Some of our most productive pastures, particularly for sheep, have been from spring broadcast ladino clover on fall-seeded alfalfa that had partially winterkilled.

So this past week George McKibben has been appraising our fall seedlings and ordering new seed now, before the forces of spring rush, winter drought and federal farm legislation make seed scarce and high priced.

Overfeeding is one of the most common causes of scours in dairy calves.

Five Suggestions For Winter Storage Of Fertilizer

CHICAGO — The Middle West Soil Improvement Committee lists five suggestions for storing fertilizer on the farm this winter so it will be in good condition when it is needed for 1956 spring crop operations:

1. Keep the fertilizer bags off the ground or off concrete.

2. Store the fertilizer in the barn or some other dry building. 3. Put the bags on 2x4's or cribbing above the floor. Then the fertilizer won't soak up moisture and get lumpy.

4. Prevent caking by piling bags only seven or eight high.

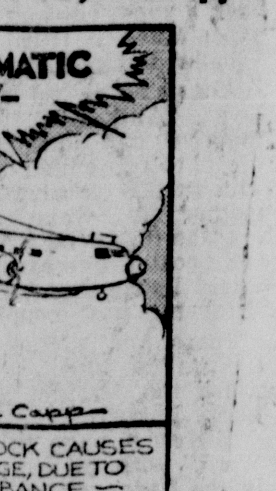

5. Keep broken bags separate from the main pile. Loose fertilizer soaks up moisture.

"Buying and storing fertilizer on the farm now is particularly advisable," says the committee, "because of the tight situation on railroad freight cars needed to move phosphate and potash from the mines to fertilizer factories."

Buyers' Slump Idles 25,000 Auto Workers

DETROIT—The auto industry, anticipating a seasonal buyer slump, has idled some 25,000 production workers in the past month in an effort to right the lopsided level of supply and demand.

Plymouth Division of Chrysler Corp. laid off 10,350 workers Friday, the biggest individual layoff notice announced since the industry started gradually trimming production in mid-December.

Plymouth said 8,350 workers would be laid off in Detroit and 2,000 at two plants at Evansville, Ind.

William J. Bird, Chrysler vice president in charge of the Plymouth Division, said production schedules were reduced in order "to bring dealer stocks into line with market demand."

Earlier, other Chrysler divisions and Ford and General Motors announced layoffs of approximately 15,000 workers.

The three firms known as the industry's "Big Three," turn out 95 per cent of the nation's automobiles.

The layoffs came with dealer stocks at near-record level and despite brisk selling by dealers the early part of this month.

Automotive News, the industry's trade paper, predicted that despite the cutbacks, production this month still is bound to overshadow sales "which are caught in the seasonal freeze-up of buyer interest."

State Dep't Hits Charge by China

WASHINGTON—The State Department hit back today at Communist China's bitter charge that the United States is stalling their talks on renunciation of force.

The Department announced it would issue a 1,000-word statement and supporting documents in answer to Red China.

Red Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan last Wednesday issued a 2,500-word attack on the United States, charging American negotiators in the long Geneva talks were stalling.

The statement said that Red China was willing to renounce use of force. But Red China would not include Formosa in any such declaration because it considers Formosa an internal Chinese problem.

The United States has insisted that the declaration cover Formosa, the biggest potential trouble-spot in the Far East today.

Former Headwaiter Charged With Failure To Pay Taxes on $69,070

NEW YORK—The federal government charged a former headwaiter at the famed Waldorf Astoria Hotel with failure to pay income taxes on $67,070 in tips he received over a four-year period.

Hans Paul, 63, now retired, paid taxes on his $3,000-a-year salary, the government said, and even reported part of his tips. But the government charged that Paul only reported about half his income, which ran as high as $39,000 a year.

The indictment against Paul, who retired in 1953 and now is vacationing in Florida, charged that he reported a net income of $13,689 in 1949 but actually earned $39,784. In 1950, Paul earned $24,357 but reported only $14,488, the government said.

Paul reported $16,196 in 1951 but actually made $29,220, the government said, and in 1952 reported $11,243 but actually made $29,316.

OUT OUR WAY

WHEN YOU'D LOVE TO LIVE FOREVER

GREAT Circle

BY ROBERT CARSE

The others in the crew were impressed by Bowditch's new attitude and it helped them through the storms. The bond of good will was increased. They sang while they worked on deck, and off watch they played checkers in the cabin, or Naish read aloud to them from his novels, the Bible and Bowditch. After Kaul's success as a navigator, Naish held nightly school for the crew.

Alfy proved he had real aptitude, and his speech cleared. He dropped the aspirate English slum accent, he practiced his handwriting, the shaping of his numerals, and he questioned Bowditch lengthily about his family. He wanted to know how they dressed, ate, talked, even danced and sang.

"What are you after, Alfy?" Naish asked him one night as the ship swept along over a moon-marked sea in the high latitudes.

Alfy's eyes were somber on the moonlight. "I was pushed into sea-going, but now I'm here I'll make all I can out of it. If I'm able to sail some second mate of some vessel, and I have money in my pocket, they won't."

"Stow it," Naish said. "I follow what you mean. And have I any such action again out of you, sailor, you'll stand to be logged severely."

Bothwick and Alfy glared at each other for several days afterwards, and Jaeger knocked Larned down for taking Bowditch's side. Morrow threw a kettle of boiling water at Purdy in the galley because Purdy accused him of staying fat on stolen, special rations. But then the Northeast trade came ruffling and they spread everything, ran to the North with the studding sails bent on full.

Naish made a habit of entering the ship's daily position on the log board after each noon fix. He ordered bow lookouts stationed and purposely sailed within clear sight of Barbados.

Cape Hatteras soon lay on the port hand, and land birds came aboard, were eagerly identified as a thrush, a tanager. Running lights were burned at night, for now the ship was in the middle of the coastal traffic. The lookout loudly banged the bell as he reported, off the Chesapeake just in the flush of dawn, an East-bound Baltimore clipper under royals and skysails. Then past Cape May and New London.

Naish shrugged and went below. No steamers and went below. No steamers for you, he thought. A clipper, now, you could sail her if given command. But, no more whalers, and get home, lad, get home.

It was again chill at night. Lookouts wore sweaters, caps, and during the day except at washing-down nobody went barefoot. Purdy began to cut hair. Beards were trimmed or entirely removed. What shore clothing existed was brought on deck to be aired, cleaned, repaired, then briefly worn. Through Larned, Naish received a request as to the sums the men should expect at the pay table.

Naish laughed. "Tell them I have no clear idea, old-timer. But I'd be given to believe that the price of oil has risen plenty since we left. What they'll get will be a plenty, share for share."

"And the widdy women, sir?" "They'll fetch their rightful share, too," Naish's eyes were grave. "Once I'm squared away with the vessel's affairs, I aim to go and visit each one of them."

"And Kaul, sir?" "I'll see for sure that he draws all that's his. But who asked you to speak for him?"

"Nobody," Larned said slowly. "It's just that I've heard prom-ises made aboard ship that wasn't kept on the dock. Kaul is a right good man. He rates his due, and families is families."

"You mean my family?" Naish said sharply. But Larned gave no answer.

Opposition to School Desegregation Is Picking Up Momentum in South

THERE'S NO SEGREGATION in this high school at Oak Ridge, Tenn., where the Atomic Energy Commission has ordered compliance with the Supreme Court ruling. But elsewhere in the South, new organizations are springing up to oppose desegregation in the public schools.

By KENNETH O. GILMORE

NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — De-termined opposition to the Supreme Court's decisions against public school segregation is picking up momentum in the South, according to latest reports received here.

The resistance is active, organized and widespread. In most cases, however, it does not follow the violent pattern of the discredited Ku Klux Klan. A number of its participants are respected community leaders.

At least 21 private organizations from Delaware to Arkansas to Alabama are openly opposing compliance with the Supreme Court's decrees outlawing public school segregation. Six of them have sprung up in the last month.

These figures are based on information received by the Southern Education Reporting Service, an independent organization in Nashville, Tenn., set up to report objectively all developments in areas affected by the Court decisions. Its monthly publication is called "Southern School News."

This is a scene you see every Sunday . . . hundreds of men and women pouring out of our churches. What effect does it have on the life of our community?

There was more happiness in our streets this week . . . more sympathy and understanding . . . more kindness and helpfulness . . . more determination to attain the highest moral and spiritual ideals.

We won't see Utopia next week. Human nature is still human. Perfection is God's alone.

But crowded churches change many lives. Worship and prayer strengthen souls. The seed God plants never dies, if we are determined to cultivate it.

Come to Church next Sunday. And when you leave, you and our community will be richer because you were there.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday . . .	Matthew	5	38-48
Monday . . .	Matthew	19	16-30
Tuesday . . .	2 Corinthians	12	7-10
Wednesday . . .	Philippians	3	7-16
Thursday . . .	Hebrews	13	14-21
Friday . . .	James	2	14-20
Saturday . . .	1 John	4	7-21

'Parables on Discipleship'

Luke 14:7-11; 16:24
GOLDEN TEXT: "For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." (Luke 14:11)
INTRODUCTION — "What you are speaks so loud that I cannot hear what you say." This is an old adage that was impressed upon my mind vividly by a great school man, Harry Taylor. He was principal of the high school which I attended. He was as much interested in building character as he was developing minds.

Jesus is reminding us of something that this same principle in that week's lesson. Character is what you are. Reputation is what people think you are. Jesus is primarily interested in your character. People read your life more than they read their Bibles. Therefore, it is most important that you be the kind of person God wants you to be.

I—GO DOWN TO RISE UP (VV. 7-11)
In Jesus' day there were the social climbers and the position seekers, just like we have today. There are folks who want the high position that they may be seen by others. Take the personal glory out of the position and they would no longer desire it. There are people who wish to sit in public gatherings in places where they may be easily seen by others.

Jesus said that "whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." He had just given the admonition that they should not seek the highest, but the lowest place; so that "he that badde thee some can say to thee, give this man a place." In other words, Jesus is teaching that we rise by being humble. This is certainly true in the spiritual realm.

IV—EXCUSES NOT ACCEPTED (VV. 16-20)
Everyday we hear excuses for not being faithful. What was your excuse for not being in services last Sunday? Did you have a reason, or was it merely an excuse? Remember, God will not accept excuses for lack of faithfulness.

Here we have the parable of the great Supper. The guests were invited. Friend, Jesus has a great banquet prepared, and you are invited. Listen to these excuses:
1. "I have bought a piece of land, and must go see it. Please save me excused." — What do you have that keeps you from doing God's will? Is it a farm, a home, business? Have you thought that God can take all your possessions from you overnight? It would be better to give up yart of your business, if it is keeping you from God.
2. "I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I must go and prove them. Please have me excused." Whatever you buy becomes a part of your stewardship. That car that you bought, or that house, or whatever it was, is a part of your stewardship. Are you using it to honor Christ, or, is it keeping you from serving Him?

3. "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come." Marriage, family and home are tremendously important. However, if family or home stand in your way of being faithful to God, beware! God can remove part or all of your home or family, if that is necessary to bring you to your spiritual senses.

I know a man and woman who have six daughters. They live on a farm near Swanwick, Illinois. They milk twenty cows twice each day. They are always on time for Sunday School (9:30 a. m.) and for Training Union (6:30 p. m.) every Sunday. They live fourteen miles from their church. They put some folks to shame who live near the church and have small or no families.

CONCLUSION — (VV.21-24)
Jesus' invitation must be answered. There is no way of avoiding this. In this world, one often receives invitations that do not require an answer. Not so with the invitation from Jesus to you. He has prepared a great feast. Heaven awaits those who answer his invitation to "come unto him." Please note, however, that the invitation must be answered. You must come to him confessing your sins, repenting (turning from) of your sins, and accepting Christ as your Savior. Will you answer his invitation today?

Wildcats Trip Sesser, 79-69

Carrier Mills travelled to Sesser Friday night and copped a 79-69 decision.

The winners were unusually effective at the free throw line, hitting for 23 points in 27 attempts. Oliver Rollins hit 8 of 9. Fitts 10 of 11, Reid 5 out of 6 and V. Rollins missed his only try.

Carrier Mills jumped off fast, holding a 27-16 quarter lead and at one time in the second frame was in front by 21 points.

However, Sesser, who entered the game with a 12 won, 3 lost record, began to whittle away and had chipped the spread to 10 points by the end of the game.

In the preliminary game Sesser won 53-45.

Tonight Carrier Mills will host the strong Norris City team.

Junior High Eighth Graders Win Two Games; Seventh Splits Two

The Harrisburg Junior high school basketball teams each played two games this week, the eighth grade winning twice and the seventh graders dividing.

Tuesday Harrisburg took two decisions from Metropolis, the seventh grade winning 42-29 and the eighth grade taking a 54-51 victory.

Thursday the seventh grade lost to Marion 50-30 and the local eighth grade squad won 48-43.

Shawneetown Wins GE Conference Tourney Championship; Indians Defeat Vienna for 19th Victory

Galatia Takes Third Place with 61-48 Win Over Cave-in-Rock

Those amazing Shawneetown Indians did it again!

Friday night, in the championship game of the Greater Egyptian conference tournament, played at Ridgway, Shawneetown raced past a good Vienna team, 68-45, to take the tourney title.

This marked the 19th victory of the season without a defeat and Shawneetown's second tournament championship in a month's time. Over a two-season span the Indians have won 51 of 52 games played.

In the battle for third place honors of the meet Galatia showed surprising strength in defeating Cave-in-Rock 61-48. Just two weeks ago—Jan. 6—Galatia dropped a 70-59 decision to the Rockers. But last night Galatia won going away.

In the opening half of the championship affair Shawneetown had trouble with the big Vienna team and led only 20-19 after two quarters. The Indians were held to a mere six points in the second frame.

At the start of the third quarter Shawneetown began to roll, quickly running up a 29-21 lead, extended the advantage to 34-23 and by the end of the quarter was in front by 20 points—47-27. The last frame was played on fairly even terms as all players got into action.

Ellis, Shawneetown guard, played an outstanding game throughout, scoring 12 points, rebounding exceptionally well, especially in the first half when his teammates were experiencing difficulties. He "quarterbacked" the team's pattern plays, in fact did a top notch job in all departments.

Joining Ellis in double-figure scoring were Nolen with 21, Gunzel with 14 and Stewart with 12. Four others broke into the scoring column.

Carroll Crane, 6-0 senior guard, played his last high school game for Shawneetown last night. Crane quit school as a freshman when he suffered a broken leg and the end of this semester was his eighth semester of eligibility for athletics.

Penrod was Vienna's top scorer with 19 points.

Galatia, paced by McFarland's 27 points, grabbed third place honors of the tourney, winning over Cave-in-Rock 61-48. The winners jumped off fast, holding a 14-7 quarter lead and were in front 26-19 at the half.

Scoring slowed in the third frame, Galatia getting seven and the Rockers 10, making the score read 33-29 as the final frame started. In the last period, with Man-ker scoring 11 points on a fielder and nine free losses and McFarland getting ten markers, Galatia raced to 28 points and held Cave-in-Rock to 19.

Frailey was Cave's top point maker with 12.

Following the end of the championship game trophies were presented to the first, second and third place teams and the game ball went to the winner of fourth position. The presentations were made by J. O. Austin, Ridgway principal and tournament manager. Then came the picture making and the tournament was history.

At the start of the third quarter Shawneetown began to roll, quickly running up a 29-21 lead, extended the advantage to 34-23 and by the end of the quarter was in front by 20 points—47-27. The last frame was played on fairly even terms as all players got into action.

Looking at Sports

BY BILL MELTON

I am writing today's column the easy way. Reprinting a column Merle Jones, sports editor of The Southern Illinoisian, wrote a few days ago.

The column is about one of Illinois' most discussed basketball coaches and his winning teams—"Duster" Thomas and his fine clubs at Pinckneyville. I enjoyed the column and thought basketball fans in this area would also find it of much interest.

Here it is—just as Merle wrote it. What Makes Panthers Win? It's All In "The System"

What is the secret of (Duster) Thomas' success as basketball coach at Pinckneyville?

The question has been debated for years by fans who wonder how a small school with less than 500 students can keep coming up with good teams. The Panthers have won a state championship, finished third four times and been to the state finals seven times in the past nine years.

So many things go into making the Pincks a winner that all success traces back to "the system." Not one thing, but rather a number of small things go into making the success.

The Thomas system starts to work even with kids in grade school. He selects his potential material by personally training the boys during the summer.

"I look for big feet and big hands in a kid," Thomas has said often. "We keep charts of how much they grow each year, how much weight they gain."

Thomas learns the kids' attitudes early. Those he can't convince that basketball is more important than steady girl friends usually play no basketball. His players generally are good students, too. Who can recall when one of (Duster's) players was ineligible?

The veteran pilot does not believe in having stars on his teams. The individual scoring record for his school is 33 points set by Warren Talley in a 74-67 sectional final victory over Centralia at West Frankfort in 1952.

"I wouldn't have cared if somebody scored 50 points that night," Thomas laughed. "We needed them. Talley normally might have been taken out of the game for taking the kind of shots he took that night, but everything he threw at the basket seemed to go through."

Pincher teams are notorious for their slow breaks. Each year a boy is trained to be the dribbler, the ball handler. In recent years those roles have gone to Frank Gladson, Bob Stanton, Bob Quillman, Tommy Decker.

"Sure, we might get a few cheap baskets if we ran," Thomas ad-

Eldorado's Clark Scores Winning Basket; Play At Mt. Vernon Tonight

Eldorado's Ron Clark sent the ball through the hoop after 29 seconds of the "sudden death" second overtime period of the Harrisburg-Eldorado basketball contest at Davenport gym last night to give the Eagles a 52-50 win over the Bull Dogs.

The score was tied 48-48 at the end of the regulation time of play as Bull Dog Wayne Stone put the last bucket through the hoop with 28 seconds left. In the first overtime, a three-minute period, Bill Henshaw of Harrisburg hit first to give the locals a 50-48 lead. But Clark counted to tie the knot at 50-50, the way the overtime period ended.

Then came the "sudden death," which meant that the first team to get two points would be the winner. Eldorado got the tip, but fumbled the ball out of bounds. Harrisburg took the ball, worked it around for a shot and Stone took it. He missed and Eldorado took the rebound, going down to the Eagle goal, where Clark took the only shot, from the side and about 12 feet away. The ball swished through the net and that was the ball game.

Each Have Bad Quarter

Both teams had one bad quarter. Harrisburg, as usual, had its woes in the second period, and the third was as bad for Eldorado. The Eagles outscored Harrisburg 14-6 in the second and the Bull Dogs made 12 to 4 for Eldorado in the third.

Free throws gave the game to Eldorado. Harrisburg made 20 field goals to 16 for the Eagles, but Eldorado connected with 20 out of 31 free shots, Harrisburg 10 out of 15. Nineteen fouls were called against Harrisburg, 10 against Eldorado.

The first quarter was close. Harrisburg trailing, but one point as the period ended 13-12. The half ended 27-18 in favor of the Eagles and it appeared that Eldorado might have the ball game. But in the third period Harrisburg tied the count at 30-30 and trailed by a point, 31-30, as the quarter ended.

The fourth period was nip-and-tuck with Eldorado making its last nine points on free throws. Stone, high scorer of the evening with 20 points, made the last three baskets for the locals.

Bull Pups Win, 64-54

Tony Beal did a pretty good job of guarding big Lin Lovellette of Eldorado, who finished up with 17 points, but Tony fouled out with four and a half minutes to go in the fourth quarter and Lovellette came through with six free throws in the last three and a half minutes.

The Bull Pups, playing without Ray Hassett, their top player who sprained his ankle Tuesday night, defeated the Eldorado freshman-sophomore team, 64-54, in the preliminary. The Pups led at the end of each period, 19-10 in the quarter, 38-31 at the half and 50-49 at the end of the third frame. Chuck Henshaw was high scorer for Harrisburg with 18 points. Mike Walker had 14, Don Biggs 12, Bill Yates 10, Eddie Price 6 and Don Pickford 4. Kane and Maynard also saw action. Eldorado's Willis had 30 points.

Tonight the Bull Dogs travel to Mt. Vernon to play the Mt. Vernon Rams in a South Seven conference game.
